Colorado's pot industry is a cash business. A small credit union wants to change that.

Calling itself the "littlest David" battling the "biggest Goliath," a fledgling Colorado credit union took the Federal Reserve to court Monday in a case that may determine whether the cannabis industry will bank openly or continue to operate almost entirely in cash.

Secretary. Mr. Hanfling is a co-founder of Seward Hanfling, a Denver-based consulting firm which specializes in business development and government relations. He has been active in the Colorado political, business and non-profit communities for twenty years. Prior to co-founding Seward Hanfling in 2012, Josh served as the founding CEO of the Mohamed S. Farsi Foundation, an international foundation focused on health, education and culture. In 2012 he set up the UK operations for Silver Bullet Water Treatment, a Colorado based commercial water treatment company that received the 2012 Best Venture award from the National Renewable Energy Laboratory (NREL). He has received numerous accolades and awards for his work serving the Denver community on a broad variety of issues.

Josh Hanfling

Board Member. Founder of the Good Meds Network, Denver, CO. Since 2010, Ms. Kelly has developed and supervised three medical cannabis centers, multiple cultivation facilities and a business which manufactures infused cannabis products. She has participated in policy development at local and state levels on cannabis-related issues such as advertising regulation, legal driving limits, rules and regulation, the self-regulatory model, and banking. She has been a member of Governor Hickenlooper’s taxation rulemaking committee, (Denver) Mayor Hancock’s Marijuana Awareness Committee, and has represented issues of cannabis policy at the local, state and federal level.

Paige Figi
Board Member. Ms. Figi is leading an ongoing scientific and legal battle to make a particular type of medicinal cannabis oil widely available to children suffering from Dravet Syndrome, a severe form of epilepsy which induces traumatic seizures in its victims, who include Ms. Figi’s daughter Charlotte. Ms. Figi personally helped to develop the oil into a medicinal product, now known as “Charlotte’s Web,” which has reduced Charlotte’s seizures from hundreds each week, to on average, fewer than one. As a result, she has become a nationally-known advocate for medical cannabis, and Charlotte’s experience was featured in a report and documentary news program issued by Dr. Sanjay Gupta of CNN in 2013, in which Dr. Gupta firmly renounced his prior scepticism regarding the medicinal use of cannabis.

Fernando J. Kim, M.D., FACS
Board Member. Dr. Kim is the Chief of Urology and the Director of Minimally Invasive Urological Oncology at the Denver Health Medical Center, as well as Associate Professor of Surgery at the University of Colorado Denver School of Medicine. He serves as a board member of the Men’s Health Clinic of Denver Health Medical Center, as well as the Chairman of the Task Force Against Prostate Cancer. He has been published extensively and is also a member of a number of leading U.S. and international medical societies. He is an organizer of the 1st International Network of Cannabis Research and Science, Denver Summit, to be held in the fall of 2015. Dr. Kim is a learned advocate for research into the medicinal uses of cannabis.

Board Member. Mr. Crawford is the spokesperson for the National Brain Tumor Society, a writer, musician and a founding member of The Avett Brothers, an American musical group based in North Carolina. He is the father of an epileptic daughter with brain cancer, which has been controlled through the application of medicinal cannabis oil. Mr. Crawford is an articulate and compelling advocate for research into the medicinal properties of cannabis.

Bob Crawford

Board Member. Mr. Bitzer has had a career for over 30 years as a leader in the Denver commercial real estate industry. He has served as President of GVA Worldwide, an international real estate network, and is a past President of CORFAC International and the Colorado Chapter for the Society of Industrial and Office Realtors. Bitzer is currently the Managing Principal at Lee & Associates

John R. Bitzer

Board Member. Ms. Jackson is Executive Director of Realm of Caring, a non-profit organization which promotes the use of concentrated medicinal cannabis oil (including “Charlotte’s Web”) to provide a better quality of life for residents of Colorado affected by cancer, MS, HIV/AIDS, Epilepsy, Parkinson’s, and other debilitating conditions.

Gov. John Hickenlooper: “If you want to guarantee that a fledgling industry becomes corrupt and, you know, becomes populated with gang activity make it all cash, right. That’s as old as Al Capone, right. Cash creates corruption.”

Colorado Governor John Hickenlooper says a partial solution might be a new state-chartered cannabis credit union. He’s urging the federal government to approve it. Still, despite the problems, Governor Hickenlooper says he’s encouraged by the rollout of this green experiment Colorado voters wanted.

The Fourth Corner Credit Union - Overview

- The Fourth Corner Credit Union was established as a Colorado State-chartered, not-for-profit credit union on November 19, 2014. This is the first credit union charter granted in over 10 years in the state.

- Collectively, the team has over 500 years of experience in the areas of banking, compliance, law, accounting, government, technology, and the cannabis industry.

- The credit union is a compliance-based financial institution that takes compliance “out from behind the desk and into the field.” This includes a 140-point state-specific Field Compliance Assessment to vet Marijuana-Related Businesses.

- In order to properly bank this highly-regulated industry, the credit union has developed a 170-page AML Risk Management and Compliance Manual.

- The credit union has a pending application with the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City and has been told a decision on the application will be issued in May 2015.

- The credit union has a pending application with the NCUA for deposit insurance, but is also pursuing private deposit insurance. If private insurance is granted, the Colorado Division of Financial Services (“DFS”), under Chris R. Myklebust, will be the credit union’s sole regulator.

“Growing a more perfect union”
Meet the Family Behind the Legal Weed Industry's First Credit Union

By Marc Brown
January 2, 2015

Alex Mason is leading the charge to get cannabis businesses and charities much-needed access to banking.

Alex started doing research and discovered that almost any group that shares a common bond can form a credit union, according to state banking laws. But it's a rigorous process. As I read about the common bond requirement for credit unions, I thought to myself that no industry has a stronger common bond than the legalized cannabis industry, he recalls. "They have to stick together, first to emerge, then to survive and now to grow."

Next, he called his dad, and within a month, the father-son duo established an office at the Denver Fish & Chips clock tower in Denver. "I slept there on the floor in a blow-up mattress for months and stayed in the clock tower building, working so long that Alex started calling merapunzel," Mark Mason recalls, laughing.

As helpful as he was in the process, Mark says that it was Alex’s cannabis connections that allowed fourth corner s team to complete the due diligence required to open the credit union. "Without Alex telling his friends it was about to talk to us, our questions would not have been candidly answered," the elder Mason explains. "I look too much like The Man, an FBI agent or something, and so did the other ex-professionals on the team. This couldn’t have happened without the legal cannabis industry being open and honest with us."

While Alex and his father dealt with the legal issues surrounding the credit union, his mother, Rhoda, dove into managing the inquiries from many people wanting to work on the historic project. "If someone reaches out to you, they deserve a response," Rhoda says.

She said that while the team was doing their homework, the cannabis industry by providing access to banking was "like taking down the Berlin Wall." Rhoda used her own historical metaphor to inspire the family. "When things got tough, I told the team that the Wright Brothers did not fly the first attempt," she recalls, "and they needed to hang in there and keep working to get this landmark project off the ground."

Alex’s sister, Delany, did her part to help the project take flight by meeting with Colorado Governor John Hickenlooper to lobby for the credit union. "I wanted to help because I had learned in college about_pag e 94, a woman who used hemp oil to stop her daughter Charlotte’s seizures and then worked tirelessly to change the law in 14 states so other children could have the same chance," says Delany, a criminal justice major at Western Carolina University and now a lawyer who lives in Asheville, North Carolina.

John, who has gained national recognition for her efforts to promote CBD oil, became a member of the credit union’s board of directors. Denver City Council member Chris McDaniel is also a founding board member, and other cannabis industry advocates, business owners and community leaders have been instrumental in creating the credit union as well, according to Alex. They assembled a team of lawyers and bank regulatory experts, including Martin Kenney, an anti-money laundering expert who recently received a lifetime achievement award for fighting financial fraud around the globe.

"The Fourth Corner Credit Union holds the promise of getting an estimated $600 million in proceeds of annual cannabis sales per year in Colorado off the streets and into a safe and well-regulated environment," Kenney says.

"The centerpiece to the Fourth Corner Credit Union will be a high-tech, cutting-edge anti-money laundering compliance unit.

Yet, despite all the people championing it, the credit union still has hurdles ahead of it. Fourth Corner has applied for federal deposit insurance, but the application review could take up to two years, according to organizers. Fortunately for them, state-chartered credit unions can open while federal deposit insurance is pending, according to a little-known Colorado banking law. In the interim, deposits will be protected against theft by a federally approved private bond, organizers say. If the federal insurance is ultimately denied, the credit union can ask the Colorado Division of Financial Services to allow it to operate under private deposit insurance, according to state law.
MEMORANDUM FOR ALL UNITED STATES ATTORNEYS

FROM: James M. Cole
Deputy Attorney General

SUBJECT: Guidance Regarding Marijuana Related Financial Crimes

On August 29, 2013, the Department issued guidance (August 29 guidance) to federal prosecutors concerning marijuana enforcement under the Controlled Substances Act (CSA). The August 29 guidance reiterated the Department’s commitment to enforcing the CSA consistent with Congress’ determination that marijuana is a dangerous drug that serves as a significant source of revenue to large-scale criminal enterprises, gangs, and cartels. In furtherance of that commitment, the August 29 guidance instructed Department attorneys and law enforcement to focus on the following eight priorities in enforcing the CSA against marijuana-related conduct:

1. Preventing the distribution of marijuana to minors;
2. Preventing revenue from the sale of marijuana from going to criminal enterprises, gangs, and cartels;
3. Preventing the diversion of marijuana from states where it is legal under state law in some form to other states;
4. Preventing state-authorized marijuana activity from being used as a cover or pretext for the trafficking of other illegal drugs or other illegal activity;
5. Preventing violence and the use of firearms in the cultivation and distribution of marijuana;
6. Preventing drugged driving and the exacerbation of other adverse public health consequences associated with marijuana use;
7. Preventing the growing of marijuana on public lands and the attendant public safety and environmental dangers posed by marijuana production on public lands; and
8. Preventing marijuana possession or use on federal property.

Under the August 29 guidance, whether marijuana-related conduct implicates one or more of these enforcement priorities should be the primary question in considering prosecution.
Guidance - The U.S. Department of Treasury

FinCEN’s stance mirrored the DOJ’s: “Our overarching goal in issuing this guidance was to promote financial transparency, ensuring law enforcement receives the reporting from financial institutions that it needs to police this activity and making it less likely that the financial operations move underground and become more difficult to track.” — Jennifer Shasky Calvery, Former Director Financial Crimes Enforcement Network, Mid-Atlantic AML Conference, Washington D.C.

August 12, 2014
FinCEN’s BSA Guidance mirrored the DOJ’s 8 Federal Priorities:

- Preventing the distribution of marijuana to minors;
- Preventing revenue from the sale of marijuana from going to criminal enterprises, gangs, and cartels;
- Preventing the diversion of marijuana from states where it is legal under state law in some form to other states;
- Preventing state-authorized marijuana activity from being used as a cover or pretext for the trafficking of other illegal drugs or other illegal activity;
- Preventing violence and the use of firearms in the cultivation and distribution of marijuana;
- Preventing drugged driving and the exacerbation of other adverse public health consequences associated with marijuana use;
- Preventing the growing of marijuana on public lands and the attendant public safety and environmental dangers posed by marijuana production on public lands; and
- Preventing marijuana possession or use on federal property.
Guidance - Red Flags from FinCEN (for Banking Priority SARs)

The following red flags indicate that a marijuana-related business may be engaged in activity that implicates one of the Cole Memo priorities or violates state law (excerpt below).

1. A customer appears to be using a state-licensed marijuana-related business as a front or pretext to launder money derived from other criminal activity (i.e., not related to marijuana) or derived from marijuana-related activity not permitted under state law. Relevant indicia could include:

- The business receives substantially more revenue than may reasonably be expected given the relevant limitations imposed by the state in which it operates.

- The business receives substantially more revenue than its local competitors or than might be expected given the population demographics.

- The business is depositing more cash than is commensurate with the amount of marijuana-related revenue it is reporting for federal and state tax purposes.

- The business is unable to demonstrate that its revenue is derived exclusively from the sale of marijuana in compliance with state law, as opposed to revenue derived from (i) the sale of other illicit drugs, (ii) the sale of marijuana not in compliance with state law, or (iii) other illegal activity.

- The business makes cash deposits or withdrawals over a short period of time that are excessive relative to local competitors or the expected activity of the business.
Guidance - Federal Regulators

“As the Agencies have stated previously, generally the decision to open, close, or decline a particular account or relationship is made by a bank or credit union, without involvement by its supervisor. This decision may be based on the bank or credit union’s particular business objectives, its evaluation of the risks associated with offering particular products or services, and its capacity and systems to effectively manage those risks.” – Thomas Curry, Comptroller, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency; Martin Greenberg, Chairman FDIC; Janet Yellen, Chair Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System; Deborah Matz, Former Chairman, NCUA

“I am writing to inform you that NCUA has provided the FinCEN guidance to agency examiners, who are responsible for determining the compliance of financial institutions that provide service to marijuana-related businesses.” -- Larry Fazio, NCUA Director, Office of Examination and Insurance

Civil Action No 15-cv-01633-RBJ

THE FOURTH CORNER CREDIT UNION, a Colorado state-chartered credit union,

Plaintiff,

v.

FEDERAL RESERVE BANK OF KANSAS CITY,

Defendant.

ORDER

The Fourth Corner Credit Union seeks a mandatory injunction directing the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City to grant it a “master account.” The bank in turn asks the Court to dismiss the case. The dispute arises from the current clash of state and federal law concerning the legality of marijuana. For the reasons discussed in this Order, this Court is unable to grant plaintiff the relief it seeks.

BACKGROUND

In 2012 the people of the State of Colorado voted to amend the state’s constitution to legalize recreational use of marijuana. Declaring it to be in the “interest of the efficient use of law enforcement resources, enhancing revenue for public purposes, and individual freedom,” the Colorado Constitution authorizes personal use of marijuana by persons 21 years of age or older. Art. XVIII, § 16(1). The amendment also authorizes the operation of marijuana-related facilities.

The FOURTH CIRCUIT CREDIT UNION, a Colorado state-chartered credit union, Plaintiff-Appellant,

v.

FEDERAL RESERVE BANK OF KANSAS CITY, Defendant-Appellee.

Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, Appellee.

No. 16-3056

Filed June 27, 2017

SYNOPSIS

Background: State-chartered credit union sues to enjoin marijuana-related businesses from acting against the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, seeking a mandatory injunction directing the Bank to grant credit under a “master account.” The United States District Court for the District of Colorado, No. 1:15-CV-01603-RBJ, R. Brooke Jackson, J., 154 F.Supp.3d 1185, entered summary judgment for Bank. Credit Union appealed.

[Heard June 27, 2017]

The Court of Appeals held that the district court was not bound by the district court’s decision not to dismiss the complaint without prejudice inasmuch as it was appropriate to allow credit union to proceed with its claims.

Vacated and remanded.

West Headnotes (1)

Federal Circuit

[1] Directing judgment of dismissal

ACTION brought by state-chartered credit union, formed to serve marijuana-related businesses, which sought a mandatory injunction directing the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City to grant it a “master account,” would be remanded with instructions to dismiss without prejudice because it was appropriate to allow credit union to proceed with its claims, either because action was not procedurally ripe, such that dismissal without prejudice was warranted, or because credit union failed in its amended complaint to state a cause of action and “would fail and obey judicial determination that its claims were without merit.” Judge Moritz would affirm the dismissal with prejudice. Judge Matheson would vacate and remand.

Ms. Deirdre O’Gorman
Mr. Christopher E. Nevitt
The Fourth Corner Credit Union
2607 East Kentucky Ave.
Denver, CO 80209

Dear Ms. O’Gorman and Mr. Nevitt:

This letter is intended to evidence the decision of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City ("FRBKC") to conditionally grant The Fourth Corner Credit Union ("TFCCU") a master account with FRBKC upon fulfillment of stated conditions, and to summarize the conditions precedent before FRBKC will open an account at FRBKC for use by TFCCU. Since the per curiam opinion in Fourth Corner Credit Union v. Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, 861 F.3d 1052 (10th Cir. 2017), FRBKC has received binding assurances that TFCCU will not serve or service Marijuana-Related Businesses ("MRBs") unless and until it becomes lawful under federal law to provide banking or financial services to MRBs.

The issuance of a master account to TFCCU is subject to the following conditions precedent, and the master account shall be issued and made effective only on fulfillment of the following conditions. The approval of the account shall occur within five (5) business days after fulfillment of these conditions, with the account opening date aligning with the date TFCCU officially opens to the public:

- TFCCU shall satisfy all requirements imposed by the Colorado Division of Financial Services ("Colorado DFS") and Colorado law necessary to commence business operations, including obtaining share deposit insurance satisfactory to the Colorado DFS, which requirements shall be determined in the sole discretion of Colorado DFS.
- TFCCU shall provide FRBKC with a letter from the Colorado DFS stating that TFCCU has satisfied all requirements and is permitted to commence providing banking services to TFCCU’s field of membership, as limited pursuant to the Settlement Agreement ("Agreement").
Fed Backs Marijuana-Focused Credit Union

Fourth Corner won’t serve dispensaries, focusing on ancillary businesses such as accountants and landlords

WASHINGTON—A Federal Reserve Bank has given conditional approval to a Colorado credit union to serve marijuana-linked businesses, though to win the Fed’s backing it agreed to step back from its original plan to serve state-licensed dispensaries.
CUs Won’t Be Sanctioned for Providing Marijuana Banking: NCUA Chairman Hood

Hood says, during an exclusive interview with CU Times, he wants to ensure that credit unions continue to follow the rules.

Credit unions in states where marijuana is legal won’t be sanctioned for providing services to cannabis-related businesses as long as they follow money laundering, Bank Secrecy Act, safety and soundness and other rules, NCUA Chairman Rodney Hood said Friday.

Congress Votes To Block Feds From Enforcing Marijuana Laws In Legal States

“The most significant vote on marijuana reform policy that the House of Representatives has ever taken,” said NORML Political Director Justin Strekal. “Today’s action by Congress highlights the growing power of the marijuana law reform movement and the increasing awareness by political leaders that the policy of prohibition and criminalization has failed.”

The House of Representatives approved a far-reaching measure on Thursday to prevent the Department of Justice from interfering with state marijuana laws, including those allowing recreational use, cultivation and sales.
As of September 2019, no financial institution has been shut down for providing services to MRBs.
American Bankers Association Predicts Marijuana Banking Bill Will Pass By Next Month

Published 2 days ago on September 9, 2019
By Kyle Jaeger

The head of the American Bankers Association (ABA) is predicting that the House of Representatives will pass legislation allowing banks to service state-legal marijuana businesses as early as this month and no later than October.
In a landmark first step toward normalization of the cannabis industry, the House of Representatives voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to pass the SAFE Banking Act, a bill that would provide state-legal marijuana businesses with full access to banks and other financial services, as well as allow consumers to use credit- and debit cards when buying legal weed.

The 321-103 vote followed spirited debate on the House floor. “The states aren’t waiting for us,” said Rep. Earl Blumenaur (D-OR). “This is an $11 billion industry and growing. And it’s growing because the people and the states are demanding it. We need to step up.”
A BILL

To create protections for depository institutions that provide financial services to cannabis-related legitimate businesses and service providers for such businesses, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; PURPOSE.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the “Secure and Fair Enforcement Banking Act of 2019” or the “SAFE Banking Act of 2019.”

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to increase public safety by ensuring access to financial services to cannabis-related legitimate businesses and service providers and reducing the amount of cash at such businesses.

SEC. 2. SAFE HARBOR FOR DEPOSITORY INSTITUTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—A Federal banking regulator may not—

(1) terminate or limit the deposit insurance or share insurance of a depository institution under the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1811 et seq.), the Federal Credit Union Act (12 U.S.C. 1751 et seq.), or take any other adverse action against a depository institution under section 8 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1818) solely because the depository institution provides or has provided financial services to a cannabis-related legitimate business or service provider;

(2) prohibit, permit, or otherwise discourage a depository institution from providing financial services to a cannabis-related legitimate business or service provider or to a State, political subdivision of a State, or Indian Tribe that exercises jurisdiction over cannabis-related legitimate businesses;

(3) recommend, incentivize, or encourage a depository institution not to offer financial services to an account holder, or to demoralize or cancel the financial services offered to an account holder solely because—

(A) the account holder is a cannabis-related legitimate business or service provider, or is an employee, owner, or operator of a cannabis-related legitimate business or service provider;

(B) the account holder later becomes an employee, owner, or operator of a cannabis-related legitimate business or service provider;

The bill will prohibit federal banking regulators from penalizing financial institutions that do business with legal and licensed marijuana businesses in states where marijuana or CBD is legal. Proponents of the measure say it will allow businesses to more-safely store their money and keep better track of its payroll and taxes. Forty-seven states, the District of Columbia and four U.S. territories have now legalized recreational and/or medical marijuana or CBD.
