Why is this an important conversation?

- Trauma is not new
- Anxiety and depression skyrocketed during the COVID-19 pandemic
- Organizations are confronting issues they never expected – global pandemic, remote work, the Great Resignation
- Professions and communities have experienced collective trauma

What is trauma?

trau•ma /'troumə, 'trômə/
noun

Individual trauma results from an event, series of events, or set of circumstances that is experienced by an individual as physically or emotionally harmful or life-threatening and that has lasting adverse effects on the individual's functioning and mental, physical, social, emotional, or spiritual well-being.

People who have experienced trauma may have difficulty...

- Moving out of fight/flight/freeze
- Experiencing pleasure and joy
- Coordinating their thoughts and feelings
- Engaging, learning or empathizing

The Body Keeps the Score

Trauma reshapes our bodies and brains — compromising our capacities for pleasure, engagement, self-control and trust.

Symptoms of trauma show up physically — how we sleep, breath, sit and eat.

...And the Mind Hides It

The mind has this incredible ability to hide and shift our experiences.

The stories we tell ourselves about our trauma not only describe the experience – they shape the experience.

Sometimes, there is a disconnect between our body and brain.

Collective Trauma:

Collective trauma refers to the impact of a traumatic experience that affects and involves entire groups of people, communities, or societies.

Resilience & Post-traumatic Growth

Post-traumatic growth refers to the positive changes experienced due to adversity or challenge.

It is the active search for meaning-making that is transformative.

What is the story we tell?

- What is the story your employees are telling themselves (about themselves and the organization)?
- What has been the story of the organization within the community?
- What is the story you want to tell?

Practicing Boundaries at Work

- Remember that clear is kind. Unclear is unkind.
- It's good to express what is OK and what is NOT OK.
 - It's OK to be mad at me. It's not okay to raise your voice and pound on the table.
 - It's OK to change your mind. It's not okay to assume that I will be OK with the changes without talking to me.
 - It's OK to disagree with me. It's not OK to ridicule my ideas.
