Each attending will determine the format of their teaching sessions. These sessions are mandatory for all students and residents.

Breast/ Endocrine: For third and fourth year residents rotating on the Breast/Endocrine service there will be a weekly resident/student didactic session with a member of the faculty. The schedule is available at the surgical oncology website. Additionally, each student will be responsible for presenting a brief review (5-10min) of an endocrine surgery or breast topic of their choice. This will be in a PowerPoint format and will be conducted during the general presentation session. Feel free to discuss your topic choice with any of the breast/endocrine faculty.

Operating room: We like to have students scrub in on as many of our cases as possible. We also, though, encourage you to see cases on other services when our service is “quiet” or when there is a case you need to see to fulfill a requirement for the course or when you find a case that interests you. Please make sure that the senior resident on the service know you are scrubbing on a case on another service. Also, let the resident know when that case has finished.

Patient Care: We expect you to follow 2 to 3 patients at the most on the floor. For those patients, we expect you to write a complete progress note daily. We also want you to present the case on rounds with the housestaff and to the attending on attending rounds. Follow those patients to the operating room and take responsibility for assuring that all labs, X rays, and other tests are completed and that you have read all the reports on this testing. Make sure that the attendings and housestaff are aware of any significant results or findings on your patients.
